JOINT REUNION OF CONFEDERATE AND FEDERAL VETERANS PLANNED

Action of Oklahoma G. A. R. in Advocating a National Gathering in St. Louis During the World's Fair Arouses General Interest and Discussion-Suggestion Is Regarded as Attractive but Leading Men Who Served in Both Armies Advance Difficulties That Stand in the Way of Its Consummation.

Eminent member of the G. A. R., who says mous with those of Captain Galennie.

might be practicable, but it would have to be handled by the national officers. Now you speak of orators. We Southerners are strong in oratory. We can get a hundred men who will demonstrate that we were right and prove that we had a constitutional right to withdraw from the Union. But that sort of thing would not do in a general meeting, but how are you going to get rid of it?

"You speak of a joint parade. Are you couldn't you fix it so there would be no right of the line and an equal division of dignity?"

SAM M. KENNARD. Well-known former Confederate, who says that the old soldlers of the South can never surrender their claim that they fought for the right.

The action of the Oklahoma Department. G. A. R., in recommending a joint reunion of former Federal and Confederate soldiers to take place in St. Louis next year, is regarded as an attractive possibility by leading members of the Grand Army and of the Confederate Veterans in this State. The matter is now being discussed in St. Louis. though it is admitted that obstacles intervene.

An opinion exists that the time has come for a formal expression of friendship between the Blue and the Gray. That the soldiers of the North extend the hand of good-will and good-fellowship to the soldier of the South, here in St. Louis during the World's Fair, is spoken of by many as a splendid prospect.

Such an occasion, many think, would be both a great drawing card for the Fair and an important event to the country at large, since the two organizations, representing the remnant of the hundreds of thousands who battled for what each thought right have never been conciliated as organizations. No joint ceremony has ever been held, and the gap between the North and the South, which were divided on much beside the slavery issue, has never been for-maily bridged.

If this could be attained during the World's Fair, a display commemorating an event which was of as great significance to the South as to the North, in the city Louislana Territory and of the United States, which is practically in the center of the it is thought that the Exposition will have brought about a lasting benefit and one which naturally should take place in the center of the Union, upon so important an anniversary.

which naturally should take place in the center of the Union, upon so important an anniversary.

Obstacles are in the way, say those who represent both organizations in St. Louis. These are not said to be insurmountable, but to overcome them will involve a deal of work and diplomacy on the part of those who are interested.

To find a common ground upon which the survivors of the bitter struggle can meet is not easy. It has been suggested before, but achlevement always has been thwarted. The chief difficulty lies in 'that a minority in both armies of veterans still remember, only too vividly, when the hail of grape and cannon shot slew their brethren and their friends.

FEDERALS TO TAKE INITIATIVE.

FEDERALS TO TAKE INITIATIVE It is agreed that the only possible procedure is through the national reunion of the Grand Army, to be held next August in San Francisco. The Oklahoma Department will at that time present the resolutions it has adopted. If the national body of the will at that time present the resolutions it has adopted. If the national body of the G. A. R. takes favorable action, it can, through its chief officers, extend the invitation to the Confederate veterans. That the invitation should come from the victors in the fight is thought proper.

Captain Frank Gaienne, who commands the local post of Confederate veterans, said that in his opinion the initiative should be taken by the Grand Army. "We were whipped," said he. "We fought as long as we were able, as long as men and money lasted. To the conqueror inheres the part of magnanimity. We cannot ask them to join us. They should ask us to join them in a reunion, in which differences should be obliterated, and in which we should jointly proclaim that, whatever the past, we stand jointly for the country as it is.

"If they should say to us something like this: "Our boys fought with your boys against the Spaniard. The past is dead and let us live together for the sake of the present, and let us show that the old wounds are at least seared over and outwardly healed." Then, perhaps, a join meeting might be brought about.

"If am afraid it is impracticable, however. The Grand Army will fear that to invite us in that way will mean acknoweldging that they were wrong in the great struggle, or will ask a great occasion at which we will be given the opportunity to proclaim that we were wrong. Now, we both believed, and still believe, that what we both fought for was absolutely right. We will carry the convection to our graves, and unless this fact can be satisfactorily bridged, a joint convention is an impossibility."

GEORGE W. OUTCALT

How He Extricated Himself From a Serious Difficulty.

"I don't think it is practicable," said he.
"I don't think it is advisable to try it. The feeling between the Union and the Confederate solders, as years pass by, grows stronger in admiration of each other as types of American manhood.
But you must remember they not only are growing oid, but, in all kindness, must be designated as old men.
"They are filled with all the characteristics of old men. If an attempt is made to bring them together as one body and under one organization, it would give rise to jealousies and ill feeling over matters that are petty in themselves, but would grow
and be magnified in the minds of old men.
Particularly would this be so if the women's organizations were included."
Colonel Thomas B. Rodgers, Assistant Adjutant General, Department of Missouri, G. A. R., and Charles F. Vogel, a leading member of Blair Post, also gave their views. Both thought the significance of the event would be great, but pointed out the difficulties. Mr. Vogel said that efforts to join hands on Decoration Day here, always had been unsuccessful. More serious difficulties, he thought, lay in the way of a national reunion. A Serious Difficulty.

How George W. Outcalt, a well-known merchant of Wellston. Oklahoma, recently succeeded in extricating himself from a serious difficulty is one of the interesting stories now going the rounds of the papers.

"I had been working very hard," he says in telling the story. "For a long time I had given almost every moment of my attention to my business, and I did not notice what effect this was having on me. But, finally, I saw that my health was giving way—I was getting thin, was always tired and easily out of breath; my blood was poor, my stomach bad. Every now and then I would be dizzy and any little exertion would exhaust me completely. In short, I was all run down.

"Then one day I saw an advertisement which led me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They acted like magic. I felt better in a few days. My fiesh came back till I regained my normal weight, my appetite returned and my general health is now better than it had been for many years. I have recommended Dr. Williams Pink Pills to many of my friends and am glad of this opportunity to tell what the remedy has done for me."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People did for Mr. Outcalt they will do for others similarly afflicted. They are different from ordinary medicine because they act directly on the blood and nerves. They have cured stubborn cases of locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, theumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and stiliow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. If you are sick and your doctor cannot cure you, write us and we will tell you honestly and frankly whether Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are suited for your case, We will not recommend the pills in cases which we do not believe they will cure.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent A Delightful Resort.
